Talks drag past midnight

late at night with the reporters kept on waiting outside the speaker's chambers for hours.

The sources privy to the development informed that a deadlock like situation emerged after the Leader of the Opposition in the NA Mehmood Khan Achakzai did not agree to the demand of the government that the opposition should call off the long march even before their meeting with the jailed leader Khan. He held a telephonic call with the opposition's negotiation team and stressed that the government should first allow their meeting with the ex-premier before taking a final decision on the protest. On the other side, the government remained stuck to its point that the PTI should first call off the protest. During this hours long wait, Interior Minister Naqvi carrying a file in his hand left Parliament

House and returned after some time, indicating that efforts to sign an agreement were still underway.

On Thursday, Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif administration had decided to engage the opposition to defuse the ongoing political crisis in the country. The PTI had given a call for a long march on Islamabad, demanding release of Khan. On Friday, the talks process between the government and the opposition had started under the mediation of speaker NA. The PTI's major demands include allowing meetings with Khan, shifting him to Islamabad's Shifa International Hospital, release of detained leaders including sisters of party founder and early hearings of cases of the ex-premier and his wife Bushra Bibi in courts.

Soon after the talks started after a delay of around two hours than the scheduled time, Speaker Sadiq expressed his hope that both sides would proceed on the talks process in the same "cordial atmosphere" as Friday's, according to a statement issued by the NA Secretariat. Earlier in the day, Gohar met Naqvi before the start of formal talks, with both sides agreeing to move ahead on the process in a positive way. The government and opposition have prepared a draft understanding aimed at resolving the government's position on imposing emergency and the opposition's decision to proceed with its long march. The draft was not issued till the filing of the report. Earlier, in a daylong session the government and opposition held several rounds of talks. The government and opposition teams took a long time over finalizing a draft agreement. A mixed reaction was given by the government and the opposition on the results of the talks. As the government members were seemingly hopeful for convicting the opposition to call off its planned long march. The matter related to a meeting with former prime minister Imran Khan with both the opposition leaders Allama Nasir Abbas and Mahmood Achakzai was also discussed in length as at one stage government agreed on this demand, background discussion with some members of the meeting revealed.

strikes had hit Yemen over the previous 24 hours, bringing the total number of such attacks since the latest escalation began to 1,410. Sarea said on social media platform X that the 60 strikes hit areas in Sanaa, Saada, Taiz, Hajjah and Marib provinces, claiming that civilian sites were among the targets. The statement came after a series of powerful explosions shook Sanaa on Saturday afternoon. Residents told Xinhua that more than seven blasts were heard within a short period, with the sound of warplanes overhead and smoke rising from the mountainous areas of Al-Nahdayn and Jabal Attan, key Houthi-held military sites. Meanwhile, Houthi and government forces kept trading attacks on Saturday to seek control of key mountainous positions in southwestern Taiz province, a Yemeni government military official told Xinhua. The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said several people on both sides had been killed or wounded amid exchanges of drone attacks and heavy airstrikes, without providing a precise toll. Against that backdrop, government forces, largely backed by Saudi Arabia, announced a new wave of military operations against Houthi positions across war-ravaged Yemen.

Yadgar-e-Fatah

Khalil said the Yadgar-e-Fatah monument serves as a landmark of the nation's victory anchored in courage and unwavering determination. He termed the opening of the Yadgar-e-Fatah monument a pride moment for the nation and for the coming generations. The ceremony was attended by prominent figures including President Chess Federation Zeeshan Naqvi and emerging national cricketer Razaullah, as well as famous public personality from the world of sports, 'Chacha Cricket'. Speaking on the occasion, cricketer Razaullah paid rich tribute to the bravery of Pakistan's armed forces and their invaluable sacrifices. He said that Pakistan's armed forces had defeated the enemy decisively in the past and would continue to do so in the future. He added that he felt immensely proud to be a Pakistani. Chacha Cricket congratulated the entire nation on the remarkable victory in Marka-e-Haq and said that the nation was ready to sacrifice their lives for the motherland. He said that Pakistan had earned a prominent place in the world through its achievements. A documentary was screened on the occasion to showcase the eight-month journey of the monument's construction and the concept behind its architecture and design.

Ali Zardari and the PPP because of the continuing terrorist incidents in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa and attacks from Afghanistan. He said the situation is a matter of concern and that the role of India behind these developments is also clear. He said the federal government had been considering the imposition of emergency and Governor's Rule in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa. Emergency and Governor's Rule, he noted, were constitutional provisions that could be used when necessary.

However, Bilawal said the PPP's position was that every possible political avenue should be exhausted before resorting to constitutional measures. Political parties, he said, should make every effort to find a political solution through which terrorism could be confronted more effectively. He said that negotiations should take place with all political parties, including the Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI). He said every political party had the right to protest and that the ongoing protest in Islamabad had achieved a certain degree of political success. However, he stressed that the issue of terrorism confronting the country could not be ignored in the prevailing circumstances.

He pointed out that while political protests were continuing, terrorist incidents were occurring repeatedly in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa. If the provincial government did not give the issue of terrorism the required importance, he said, the federal government could ultimately be compelled to consider constitutional options. Before reaching that point, he said, PPP and all other political parties should make efforts to contact the PTI and persuade it to acknowledge the political gains achieved through its long march and protest and bring the protest to an end. Bilawal said there should be a formal written agreement between the federal government and the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa government under which both sides would jointly confront terrorism. He stressed that if there were political crises or political differences, these should be kept separate from terrorism and matters of national interest. Political issues should be discussed separately with the relevant political parties, while the national strategy to combat terrorism should remain a separate matter. The PPP Chairman expressed hope that all political parties currently in Islamabad would understand the importance of the negotiations taking place at this time.
